PRC (everyday) everyday simplified	〇	一	二	三	四	五	六	七	八	九	十	五十	百	五百	千

Roman: smaller before bigger subtracts: IV 4 · IX 9 · XL 40 · XC 90 · CD 400 · CM 900. MCMVII = M + CM + VII = 1000 + 900 + 7 = 1907.

Hebrew: more letters: כ 20 · ל 30 · מ 40 · ס 60 · ע 70 · פ 80 · צ 90 · ר 200 · ש 300 · ת 400. Add them up: ה'תשנ"א → (5000) + 400 + 300 + 50 + 1 = 5751 → 1990/91; the thousands are often left off. 15 = ט"ו, 16 = ט"ז.

Ethiopic: more tens: ፳ 20 · ፴ 30 · ፵ 40 · ፶ 60 · ፸ 70 · ፹ 80 · ፺ 90; ፼ = 10,000. Hundreds are counted with ፻: ፲፱፻፷፱ = (10 + 9) × 100 + 60 + 9 = 1969.

PRC rows: on coins = the simplified bank numerals, used for the value on PRC coins and notes because they are hard to alter: 壹圆* = 1 yuan, 伍角* = 5 jiao, 贰分* = 2 fen (1 圆 = 10 角 = 100 分). The date on PRC coins is in Western digits. Only 贰叁陆 differ from the traditional bank forms 貳參陸. Everyday = the simplified numerals for counting; for every value in this table they are the same characters as traditional Chinese (Taiwan, Hong Kong, older coins) and Japanese. Only the big units change: 萬 → 万 (10,000), 億 → 亿 (100,000,000). Zero is 〇 or 零; 廿 = 20 on some old coins; 元年* = "first year" of an era. Both PRC rows print at full weight, like every other row: nothing in this table is shown lighter.

Chinese / Japanese, how to combine: multiply, then add. Digit before a place = multiply · digit after = add: 二千五百 = 2×1000 + 5×100 = 2,500 · 十二 = 10 + 2 = 12 · 二十 = 2×10 = 20 · 一萬 = 10,000 · 二百零五 = 205 (零 holds the empty place). A leading 十 means 10 (the 一 is dropped). 萬 and 億 multiply everything in front of them.

Coin examples:

民國 TEXT · Republic of China | 三 NUMBER · 3 | 年 TEXT · year → 3 + 1911 = 1914

Words in Arabic, Persian and Hebrew script read right to left. Arabic and Persian digits inside a number still read left to right: ١٣٢٠ = 1320, ١٢١٣ = 1213. Hebrew letter-numbers read right to left like words, biggest value first: ה'תשנ"א = (5000) + 751. Western digits on modern Israeli coins read left to right.

Two TEXT characters naming a year, used on Qing "dragon" coppers (大清銅幣 Dà Qīng Tóngbì, 1906–11). The cycle repeats every 60 years, so check the era too.

CHINA · WHO MADE IT?

中华人民共和国 Zhōnghuá Rénmín Gònghéguó (simplified) + CE date = PRC.
中華民國 Zhōnghuá Mínguó (traditional, "Republic of China") + Year N = ROC / Taiwan → +1911.

⟵ READING DIRECTION · CHINESE & JAPANESE COINS

ISLAMIC (AH) DATES: A WORKED EXAMPLE

Real coin: gold toman of Fatḥ-ʿAlī Shāh Qājār, Tehran (Iran). Photo: American Numismatic Society, CC0.

1. ۱۲۱۳ = 1213 the AH date (bottom of the front)
2. Back the mint formula: ضرب دار السلطنة طهران ḍarb Dār al-Salṭana Ṭihrān, "struck at Tehran"

Read the digits with the digits table on page 3: ۱ 1 · ۲ 2 · ۱ 1 · ۳ 3, left to right = 1213.

Convert: CE ≈ AH × 0.97 + 622 → 1213 × 0.97 = 1176.6, + 622 = 1798.6 → 1798/99 CE. (AH 1213 ran from 15 June 1798 to 4 June 1799.) The Hijri year is lunar, about 11 days shorter than ours, hence × 0.97; the count starts at the Hijra, 622 CE. Always ±1 year.

Iran used lunar AH dates until 1925, then solar SH (CE = SH + 621, page 4). Same digits, different maths: check the calendar first.

Words to look for (romanized)

سنة sana / sanat "year": often sits next to the date

دار السلطنة طهران Dār al-Salṭana Ṭihrān "Abode of the Sultanate, Tehran": the mint on this coin

جلوس julūs "accession": Ottoman coins give the sultan's first year, plus a small regnal-year number

ضرب في ḍuriba fī "struck in" + the mint city (Persian coins: ḍarb, said zarb)

السلطان al-Sulṭān "the sultan": the ruler's title, then his name

CHINESE CASH COINS (ROUND, SQUARE HOLE): HOW TO READ THEM

Read in this order: top, bottom, right, left (1 → 2 → 3 → 4).

Drawing: front of a Qianlong cash coin. Read the numbers in order.

Real coin: Qianlong Tongbao, back L = boo, R = ciowan (Board of Revenue, Beijing). Photo: Jean-Michel Moullec, CC BY 2.0.

#	Character	Pinyin	Meaning	Context
1	乾	qián	heaven	Together: the reign name Qianlong, 1736–95
2	隆	lóng	prosperous, abundant
3	通	tōng	to pass through, circulate	Together: tōngbǎo, "circulating treasure" = coin
4	寶	bǎo	treasure

Hold it the right way up: 寶 bǎo ("treasure") is on the left of the hole on most Qing cash.

Common endings: 通寶 tōngbǎo "circulating treasure" · 元寶 yuánbǎo "original treasure" · 重寶 zhòngbǎo "heavy treasure" (big multiple-value coins, e.g. 咸豐重寶 Xiánfēng Zhòngbǎo).

READING ORDER · SQUARE-HOLE CASH COINS

Standard: top → bottom → right → left (開元通寶, all Qing cash, and the family below). Some issues read clockwise: top → right → bottom → left, e.g. 順天元寶 (759). If the standard order does not give a known reign name + 通寶 / 元寶 / 重寶, try clockwise.

THE FOUR-CHARACTER FAMILY: SAME LAYOUT, OTHER COUNTRIES

All read top, bottom, right, left unless noted.

開元通寶 Kāiyuán Tōngbǎo
China (Tang) · from 621 · said in pinyin
Copied all over East Asia.

寬永通寶 Kan'ei Tsūhō
Japan · from 1636 · said in Hepburn
A 文 bun on the back marks the Edo issue of 1668.

常平通寶 Sangpyeong Tongbo
Korea (Joseon) · 1633; mass-cast 1678 to the 1890s · said in Revised Romanization
The back carries the casting office, e.g. 戶 ho (Treasury), plus a furnace number.

嘉隆通寶 Gia Long Thông Bảo
Vietnam (Nguyễn) · 1802–20 · said in quốc ngữ
This one's back reads 七分 thất phân ("7 phân", a weight).

明命通寶
Minh Mạng Thông Bảo
Vietnam (Nguyễn) · 1820–41 · said in quốc ngữ
Same layout as Chinese cash; the reign name is Vietnamese.

琉球通寶 Ryūkyū Tsūhō
Ryūkyū (cast by Satsuma, Japan) · 1862–65 · said in Hepburn
Exception: this oval coin reads top to bottom. Back 當百 tōhyaku = "worth 100".

QING "DRAGON" COPPERS (FROM ABOUT 1900)

Drawing: front of a Hubei 10 cash.

Real coin: Hubei 10 cash, front A–C, back D. Photo: Scott Semans World Coins (CoinCoin.com), CC BY 3.0.

A · top ring = who made it. 湖北省造 Húběi shěng zào = "made by Hubei province", read right to left. The first two characters are the province.

B · centre = reign name + "coin". 光緒元寶 Guāngxù Yuánbǎo, read like a cash coin. From 1906 a second type reads 大清銅幣 Dà Qīng Tóngbì and many carry a 60-year cycle date (page 5).

C · bottom = value. 當十 dāng shí = "worth ten" (cash), also read right to left.

D · back: a dragon with the province and value in English, e.g. HU-PEH PROVINCE · TEN CASH (old spellings).

⟵ These read right to left: pre-1945 Japanese horizontal text · older Chinese horizontal text, Qing and Republic, before about 1949 (like the dragon top ring) · Arabic and Persian words · Hebrew words and letter-numbers. Caveat: Arabic and Persian digits still read left to right: ١٢١٣ = AH 1213. Post-war Japanese coins read left to right; vertical text reads top to bottom; cash coins: page 6.

BRITISH TRADE DOLLAR (1895-1935)

1. ONE DOLLAR the value in English
2. 1902 the CE date
3. B mint mark in the trident's middle prong (zoom, left)
4. 壹 yī, 1 (formal), top
5. 圓 yuán, dollar, bottom
6. Jawi Malay, satu ringgit, "one dollar"
7. 壽 shòu, longevity, centre

Obverse: Britannia with trident and shield, a merchant ship behind. No king or queen on it.

Reverse: 壹 yī + 圓 yuán = "one dollar" in Chinese; ساتو رڠكيت satu ringgit = "one dollar" in Malay (Jawi script); the 壽 shòu symbol in the centre.

Mint mark: B = Bombay, a tiny letter in the trident's middle prong (zoom) · C = Calcutta, on the ground between Britannia's foot and the shield (bottom of the obverse) · no letter = London (1925, 1930) or a worn die.

2. 港 bottom: gǎng
3. 壹 right: yī, 1 (formal)
4. 圓 left: yuán, dollar
5. 壽 centre: shòu, longevity
6. 1867 the date, plain CE, in the English ring

First silver dollar (1866–68): 香 xiāng top, 港 gǎng bottom, 壹 yī right, 圓 yuán left: 香港壹圓 Xiānggǎng yī yuán, with 壽 shòu in the centre.

Queen's head (to 1992): front QUEEN ELIZABETH THE SECOND; back 香港 Xiānggǎng HONG KONG + 壹圓 yī yuán ONE DOLLAR (the $1).

Bauhinia flower (from 1993): front 香港 Xiānggǎng around the flower; back the value in digits, the date in normal CE numbers and the denomination in Chinese + English, e.g. 壹毫 yī háo TEN CENTS.

Small change: the copper cent reads *香港*一仙 Xiānggǎng yī xiān in the centre, read top, bottom, right, left like the dollar; 一仙 yī xiān = one cent. Date in CE on the English ring (1876).

Decode: 壹 yī = 1 (formal) · 圓 yuán = dollar · 毫 háo = ten cents. The date needs no maths.

CHOP MARKS

Spanish colonial 8 reales covered in chop marks from Qing China. Bode-Museum, Berlin. Photo: Daderot, CC0.

1. Symbol chop a circle with a cross, punched by a money-checker (zoom)
2. Character chop a Chinese character; this coin carries dozens
3. Original legend the Spanish legend (...GR... of DEI GRATIA) still shows under the chops

What: small punched stamps, usually a Chinese character (e.g. 天 tiān "heaven", 利 lì "profit") or a simple symbol, struck into silver coins in China.

Why: merchants' money-checkers ("shroffs") tested each coin and stamped it to vouch for good silver; the punch also broke through plating on fakes. Done for about 300 years, until the early 1900s.

Where: Spanish/Mexican 8 reales, US and British trade dollars, and other big silver coins.

Value: once treated as damage (often graded "Details"). Today many collectors seek them out: clear, interesting chops add history. Heavy chopping like this, which wipes out the design, usually hurts.

WORKED EXAMPLE 1 · SPANISH COLONIAL 8 REALES ("PIECES OF EIGHT")

Bust type, 1796, Mexico City. Photo: Joe deSousa, CC0.

Pillar type, 1771, Mexico City. Image courtesy of Heritage Auctions (HA.com), CC BY 4.0.

1. CAROLUS IIII Charles IV (IIII = 4): the king
2. DEI GRATIA by the grace of God
3. 1796 the date, plain CE
4. HISPAN ET IND REX King of Spain and the Indies
5. Mo Mexico City mint (o above the M)
6. 8R 8 reales: the value
7. F M assayers' initials (officials who tested the silver)
8. pillars Pillars of Hercules; ribbons read PLVS VLTRA, "further beyond"

1. VTRAQUE VNUM "both (worlds) are one": two globes between the pillars
2. Mo · Mo Mexico City mint, either side of the date
3. 1771 the date
4. PLUS VLTRA on the pillar ribbons
5. CAROLUS III D G Charles III, by the grace of God
6. F M assayers' initials (left of the shield)
7. 8 8 reales (right of the shield)
8. HISPAN ET IND REX King of Spain and the Indies

Two looks: the pillar type (globes between two pillars, 1732 to about 1772) and the bust type (the king's portrait, from 1772). Both give the date in plain CE numbers; Mo + the value + the assayers' initials sit together in the legend. The small punch marks on the 1796 coin are likely chop marks (see Chop Marks, page 9).
